We, the committee, submit this second history of the Albrecht family in America to you. We have searched all available sources for dates and early events in their struggle to make homes in the prairie wilderness of Illinois. In 100 years the descendants number nearly 1300 names and have scattered far from their ancestral home. While their experiences were not unlike those of the average pioneer, still it is especially interesting to us because it concerns our own kith and kin.

We gratefully acknowledge help received from the older members of the family such as Mrs. Christian Albrecht, Henry V. Albrecht and Fred Albrecht Sr., as well as for large extracts printed from the first Albrecht history published in 1921. We hope it will be as interesting to you, as it has been helpful to us in considering their sterling qualities and determination to live honest upright lives.

Story of the Albrecht Immigration to America

Early in the nineteenth century Christian Albrecht and his wife, Elizabeth Engel, lived in a large community house at Kaiserslautern, Bavaria Germany, now a city of some 50,000. They probably lived in the city and went out daily to work on the surrounding farm land. We judge that Christian was more than the average in thrift and learning as he was a good scribe, and used good German. He was a man of some means as we may know by his being able to bring 23 persons to this country at one time, also because he saw to it that his children attended school.

When their oldest son became old enough for military service they managed to have him excused saying that he was needed to help provide for so large a family. The father well knew that the militaristic government would not respect his objections, i. e., that it was wrong to take up arms against a fellowman. In Germany, the Mennonites and other non-resistant faiths often met with hardships and persecution since they were considered disloyal to the government.

Five years later when they came for Peter he sat in the road and played with pebbles to make them think him mentally deficient. Thus a second son secured exemption. However the third son, John, did not fare so well. They told his father that he could not expect to keep all his sons and that John must enter the standing army.

Consequently rather than go against the teachings of his church in the future, Christian Albrecht began immediately to make plans to take the entire family to America, the land of opportunity and religious freedom. Early in 1836 they set sail for New York leaving John behind in the army.

After landing in New York they took the water route via the Hudson River, Erie Canal and the Great Lakes to old Fort Dearborn, now the famous city of Chicago. From there the remainder of the journey had to be made overland to Hennepin, Illinois, where their friends the Burkeys had settled when they came over some years previous. The only means of transportation available was an ox team and a wagon which they hired to haul the trunks and other belongings.

With this equipment, the father, mother, children and grandchildren, walked to their new home. The entire inland trip from New York to Hennepin took a little over 3 weeks. They were welcomed by these Burkey friends in true pioneer fashion and invited to stay there until they were located.

The mother, Elizabeth Engel, was a tall, slender woman, prone to worry. She was 56 years of age when they came to this country and passed away 6 years later a victim of pneumonia. Her husband, Christian, died a few weeks later in January 1842 from the same trouble.

Besides Christian Albrecht and wife the following children and their families came from Germany: Barbara, husband Jacob Ioder and 4 children; Jacob Albrecht, wife and 2 children; Elizabeth Albrecht, husband Casper Zierlein and 2 children, the younger of which learned to walk on the sailboat; Peter; Katherine, husband Mr. Heimer and 1 son, John; Joseph; Christian Jr.; and Magdalene; 23 in all.

During the fall Joseph then about 19 years of age crossed the Illinois River to the west side in search of a suitable place for the new home. While he was gone the fall rains set in, and continued for a few days. This raised the water so high in that section of the lowlands that he was stranded on the west side of the river for about six weeks. He made a brush shelter between two trees and had for food such game as he could capture and cook by campfire or berries and nuts. After returning from this adventure he persuaded a part of the family to join him and settle on land which is now in Section 21 of Arispie Township, known as the Dan Albrecht farm, now owned by Albert Schertz.

At this location the father assisted by his sons built a one-room log house, which had only a fireplace to furnish heat for cooking and comfort. Here the four families lived the first winter, namely Christian, wife and Joseph; Barbara, husband, Jacob Ioder, and 4 children; Jacob, wife and 2 children; and Elizabeth, husband, Casper Zierlein and 2 children.

In the spring the daughter, Elizabeth Zierlein, decided to make a home of her own and started to make a dugout in the eastern part of the same section. She never completed it as her husband built a log cabin south of the home on what is known as the old Zierlein place, now owned by Oliver Luetscher. The same summer, the oldest daughter, Barbara, and husband, built a cabin about a mile and one-half north of the old home. This place was later known as the Tebow farm and later still as the old Obermeyer home.

During their stay at Hennepin the first summer Casper Zierlein helped build the Hennepin court house. (See pictures.) This building is still standing and in good condition. In the early 1850's he made bricks enough to build himself a new home. He also built the brick house on the Daniel Ioder homestead. The bricks were made in a field south of the Ioder home near a large oak tree.

The following year (1838) Jacob, the oldest son, built a home for his family, two miles west of the old home on a 80-acre farm just above the Plow Hollow Hill. He later moved four miles north and west of Princeton near the covered bridge. About that time he lost his wife but was remarried in a few years and then moved to a farm just west of where the village of Ohio now stands. In a house on the north of route 92 his last 5 children were born. The ground on which the Ohio school stands was donated by him to be used for a school site only. Because of this provision the new building was erected on the present lot although some wished to change the location.

When the railroad was built through that section, Jacob contracted to build part of the grade. Some wanted the station called Albrecht, but since many of the settlers were from Ohio state, it was called Ohio station and later just Ohio. He later owned the Dad Joe Smith farm, and established his younger children on farms in that vicinity.

Peter Albrecht, one of the four who remained in Putnam county, married there and later moved to Lombardville on Providence Prairie.

John, the third son was born in Budenhof, Bavaria Germany, April 3, 1814. He attended common school carrying a piece of dry rye bread in his pocket for lunch as all the rest had probably done.

When his parents came to America, John was compelled to remain for military duty. The usual term was three years but because there was a threat of war with France the term of service was extended to six years. Homesick and troubled he became physically weaker and weaker until he was scarcely able to perform his duties. Finally this thought came to him, "Oh, why are you so foolish and grieve so, put your trust in God, He forsakes no one." With renewed trust came renewed strength and courage. At the end of six years on April 16, 1842 he received honorable discharge with commendation for good conduct. He immediately made plans to come to America and borrowed money for his passage but before he could get away the sad news reached him by letter that both his father and mother had died that winter. The trip across the ocean was made in a sailboat and took fifty-four days to cross. From New York he went both by train and water as far as St. Louis when his funds became exhausted. A fellow passenger then loaned him $20.00 to complete the journey to Hennepin, Illinois, for which place he made inquiry but was told that while the name of the town might be pronounced Hennepin in German, in English it was Hannibal and directed him to a boat which took him up river to Hannibal, Mo. He was obliged to go back to St. Louis to get a boat up the Illinois river. Again he was without sufficient funds to complete the journey. Finding a grain boat about ready to leave for Hennepin, Illinois, he made arrangements with the boatmen to work for his passage which he did; although his fingers became sore and bleeding from the unaccustomed work. It was harvest time when he got to Hennepin, and as he came unannounced and the six years absence had made such a change in his appearance, his own brother supposing him to be someone looking for a job, did not know him until he began to speak. His first employer was a Mr. Perkins near the village of Senachewine (now Putnam). His wages were $9.00 a month and later it was raised to $11.00 per month. He worked until he had earned enough money to pay off his debts. At the age of thirty he was married in Tazewell county, Illinois, to Miss Mary Ackerman, who also had been a native of Bavaria.

After farming for two years on a rented place near Princeton, they bought 80 acres of land southeast of Tiskilwa at $5.00 an acre, and which place is now occupied by a grandson, Alvin Albrecht. They had a three-room house built on it and in the middle of winter when his son Christian was but six weeks old he moved in with his family. The house was not yet plastered so they hung quilts around the walls when the weather was cold. The house is still standing but is unoccupied. There was no barn so the horses were taken to a nearby hollow and tied to the wagon under a rude shelter made of brush. The water supply was obtained from a nearby spring. He and his wife worked together courageously and kept adding to their home and farm as time went on. He often told how his wife helped replenish their meat supply by shooting prairie chickens when they came near the house and how she would help in the harvest field when help, which had been promised, failed to come.

Five sons and three daughters came to bless this home. One little son met an accidental death, another son, Peter, and a twin daughter, Magdalene, aged seven, died in childhood several days apart of scarlet fever. The other children grew to manhood and womanhood and in due time established homes of their own. The wife and mother passed away in January 1875 at the age of 56 years. John then lived with his son Christian, who was married several years after his mother's death, in the home which he had built later, until he was 88 years of age, when he moved with his son Christian and family into a nearby new home.

During the later years of his life he spent much time in reading the New Testament until his eyesight failed. His seat at church was seldom vacant. While he made his mistakes in life, his aim was to be true to the right, as God gave him to see it. His possessions were acquired through thrift and hard labor. He extended a helping hand to many a struggling fellowman and won for himself the affectionate title of "Uncle John." He was unable to walk the last year of his life and on October 6, 1905 he quietly fell asleep at the age of 91 years and 6 months, and was buried by the side of his wife in the Willow Springs cemetery.

Katherine, moved with her husband and son from Hennepin to Woodford county. She was widowed at Spring Bay and later married Daniel Orendorff.

Magdalene who married Andrew Burkey moved to Putnam county. She later moved northwest of Ohio to a farm where Marvin Ioder now lives. After some years they moved to Nebraska and little was heard of them.

Christian Jr., the youngest son, remained at Hennepin until after his marriage, then moved to Arispie Township into an old log cabin just below the hill from where his parents and brother Joseph were living.

Joseph married Barbara Gingery. She had come from Germany to Pennsylvania in 1825 and later to Illinois. During the Black Hawk War she lived at Fort Peoria with her parents. Joseph brought his bride to his parents home which he later owned. The parents lived with him until they died and were buried in the family cemetery. The original cabin stood many years after another home had been built by Joseph and his sons, Daniel and Joseph Jr. After Joseph died his son Daniel lived there and reared his 5 children. This farm now belongs to Albert Schertz.

Joseph's youngest son William, born in 1850, was the first American Albrecht with a college degree. He graduated in the first class to receive degrees from Lombard University at Galesburg, June 15, 1874. He then went to Germany for a year and took special work. He next went to Brooklyn and graduated from a medical course.

A short time later he sickened and died. Realizing that the end was near he called a friend and wrote a lady's name and a German address. His sister wrote to her later, telling of his death and learned that the two had been betrothed.

When Henry V. Albrecht took his first trip to India to visit his daughter, a missionary, he called on that lady, who was then 78 years old. She had married and raised a family and greatly appreciated the call. One who knew William Albrecht quite well had this to say of him: "He was a very noted young man of his day, and was the most noted of the family, and of all the community at that time."

The Albrechts, while not an outstanding family, and boasting of no geniuses or unusual men of their generation, can be especially proud that there are likewise no criminals or persons of disrepute of whom to be ashamed. It was out of such stock, firm in personal convictions, industrious, hardworking, and thrifty, that this state and nation has been able to mold the citizenry of today. A continuation of the life principles held by these sturdy Germans and the practice of their habits of thrift and honesty will insure continued peace and prosperity for this our glorious nation.
